The Letter ऋ

The seventh letter in the Sanskrit varṇamālā is ऋ. It is pronounced like the re in pretty. In Roman Transliteration it is written as 'ṛ'. It is labelled as a mūrdhanya-varṇa (retroflex sound). Mūrdhā is the hard palate which forms part of the roof of the mouth. Wind passes through this part while the sound ऋ is uttered.

Some obstruction of wind and contact of tongue to the hard palate is felt in the pronunciation of this letter. So scholars debate on whether ऋ is a vowel or not, and if it is a vowel what its exact pronunciation is. It is evident then, that there are variations in the way in which this letter is pronounced by different people, some resembling 'ree' (as in 'free') and some resembling 'ru' (as in 'ruby'). However, by all means ऋ is considered to be a vowel as it can be elongated in tone as ॠ, like other vowels as अ-आ, इ-ई etc. This is a feature of vowels only as consonants being stop sounds, cannot be elongated.

Traditionally, ऋ is noted as a basic vowel like अ, इ and उ. Ideally there should be no distortion of the mouth either horizontally (as in 'free') or as a pout (as in 'ruby') but only as a mild downward movement of the lower lip in the pronunciation of this letter.

The following is the method of writing the alphabet.

In the initial position of a word the sound 'ṛ' is written as an alphabet with the symbol in devanāgarī script as 'ऋ'. Elsewhere in a word, when attached to a consonant, the sound is represented with a vowel maker with the symbol in devanāgarī as |ॠ| under the consonant, making it a complete syllable. For example, |ॠ| as in कृ(kṛ), जृ(jṛ) etc.

This vowel marker does not go with many consonants in the Sanskrit language. In fact, out of the 33 consonants only 18 of them have verbal usages in Sanskrit in conjunction with this vowel sound. We shall eventually elucidate them when the Sanskrit consonants will be discussed.

Following is a list of words in Sanskrit starting with 'ऋ' –

ऋतम्	ऋtam	Truth
ऋजु	ऋju	Upright/Straight
ऋजुकृतम्	ऋjukṛtam	Straightened
ऋभुमान्	ऋbhumān	Clever (masculine)

Please observe the word ऋजुकृतम् (in the above list. The sound 'r' when written in the beginning of the word is written as the alphabet 'ऋ', while elsewhere in the word the sound is represented by the vowel marker |ॠ|.

Let us recap how to write the alphabet ऋ.

वेदः VEDĀḤ Vedas

वेदः भारत-देशस्य प्राचीनं वाङ्मयम् अस्ति ।

vedaḥ bhārata-deśasya prācīnam vāṅmayam asti.

Veda is an ancient literature from Bhārata-deśa.

वेद-शब्दस्य व्युत्पत्तिः विद्-धातोः कल्प्यते ।

veda-śabdasya vyutpattiḥ vid-dhātoḥ kalpyate.

The derivation of the word Veda is considered to be from the root verb 'vid'.

विद्-धातुः 'जानाति', 'बोधति' इत्यर्थे वर्तते ।

vid-dhatuḥ 'jānāti', 'bodhati' ityarthē vartate.

The root verb 'vid' is in the sense of 'knows' or 'understands'.

ततः 'वेदः' इत्यस्य 'श्रेष्ठ-ज्ञानम्' इत्यर्थः ।

tataḥ 'vedaḥ' ityasya 'śreṣṭha-jñānam' ityarthah.

Thus, 'Veda' means 'supreme knowledge'.

ज्ञानस्य उपलब्धिः वेदैः भवति इति श्रद्धा अस्ति । jñānasya upalabdhīḥ vedaiḥ bhavati iti śraddhā asti.

There is a belief that, the acquisition of (ultimate) knowledge is from the Vedas.

अतः सर्वेषां क्षेत्राणां मूलानि अत्र प्राप्यन्ते । ataḥ sarveṣāṃ kṣetrāṇāṃ mūlāni atra prāpyante.

Thus, the source of all fields (of knowledge) are found here.

वेदाः अपौरुषेयाः सन्ति, अर्थात् वेदाः न केनापि रचिताः । vedāḥ apauruṣeyāḥ santi, arthāt vedāḥ na kenāpi racitāḥ.

Vedas are divine, which means that the Vedas were not composed by anyone.

वेदाः अनन्ताः सन्ति । इदानीं तु ते भागशः एव उपलभ्यन्ते । vedāḥ anantāḥ santi. idānīm tu te bhāgaśaḥ eva upalabhyante.

Vedas are infinite. However, now they are available in parts only.

आदौ वेदाः समग्राः आसन् । अनन्तरं कृष्णद्वैपायनेन तेषां विभजनं कृतम् । तेन सः व्यासः ādau vedāḥ samagrāḥ āsan. anantaram kṛṣṇadvaipāyanena teṣāṃ vibhajanam kṛtam. tena saḥ vyāsaḥ iti nāmadheyam prāptavān.

Initially Vedas existed as a whole. Later their division was done by Kṛṣṇadvaipāyana. He thus acquired his name as 'Vyāsa' (the arranger).

चत्वारः वेदाः ।

The Vedas are four.

वेदाः VEDĀḤ Vedas

Lord Kṛṣṇa, as the paragon teacher par-excellence, utilizes a comprehensive and coherent repertoire of literary devices to capture the essence of His ultimate message of transcendence. Here, we examine the literary device of alaṅkāra or more precisely, upamā-alaṅkāra, the usage of simile in the Bhagavadgītā. Simile, as a subset of analogy, enables the reader to conjure up a visual image and attach that imagery to a more abstract line of thought by means of an appropriate comparison.

In the second chapter, Kṛṣṇa categorizes a vast array of concise illuminations on the yoga system. With a focus priority on the nature of the soul, we receive description and analysis to enable accurate classification and clarification of our constitutional position as jīvas, or spiritual beings.

All spirit souls have acquired a certain conditioned nature which inhibits the capacity for realisation of our full potential. Kṛṣṇa explains this with reference to the hierarchy of bodily functions; the senses, the mind, the intelligence and the soul in this particular sequence. In describing the successful yoga practitioner, Kṛṣṇa highlights his/her ability for sense control through the vivid simile of the tortoise who withdraws its limbs when in a dangerous position – कूर्मोऽङ्गानीव सर्वशः kūrmo'ṅgānīva sarvaśaḥ (Bg. 2.58). Just as the tortoise withdraws its limbs when in danger, so the experienced yogī withdraws his senses at the time of potential negative engagement.

Contrary to popular contemporary analysis, this type of self-control is promoted as the bedrock of success in the process of self realisation. Kṛṣṇa next raises a red flag on the roaming senses, with the warning that any one of the unattended senses may cause havoc on the path for the spiritual seeker. Just as a boat may be swept away by the powerful winds in the ocean, as वायुर्नवमिवाम्भसि vāyur-nāvam ivāmbhasi (Bg. 2.67), so the yogī may be dragged to the material platform the unsuccessful practitioner – will he not perish like a riven cloud? – छिन्नाभ्रमिव नश्यति chinnābhram iva naśyati (Bg. 6.38). In the process of responding to Arjuna, Kṛṣṇa reveals another system of yoga – bhakti-yoga – which encompasses the essence of all the other processes of yoga. Bhakti – devotion, enables the practitioner to engage the senses, mind and intelligence in connection with the Supreme and to ultimately become absorbed in, and sheltered by, the energy of the Supreme Lord. In the seventh chapter of the Gītā, Kṛṣṇa begins to reveal the intricacies of bhakti and to detail the comprehensive nature of its application.

In a summary statement of inspiration, Kṛṣṇa reassures Arjuna that He (Kṛṣṇa) is the ultimate and guiding principle of the universe, and that he (Arjuna) is safe within the jurisdiction of His instruction. सूत्रे मणिगणा इव – sūtre maṇigaṇā iva (Bg. 7.7) – everything rests upon Kṛṣṇa as pearls are strung on thread. Kṛṣṇa is the unseen thread connecting of all living beings and He is directing the wanderings of all.

by inattention or misuse of the senses. Arjuna, similarly employs the usage of this upamā-alāṅkāra in his response to Kṛṣṇa's directive to pursue the aṣṭāṅga-yoga path. Considering his present condition and state of mind, Arjuna proclaims his unlikely ability to control the senses by the aṣṭāṅga-yoga process. He captures the severity of his dilemma with the simile of the raging wind – वायोरिव सुदुष्करम् vāyoriva suduṣkaram (Bg. 6.34). Here, Arjuna reveals to Kṛṣṇa that the mind is more powerful and unwieldy than the forceful wind – वायोरिव vāyoriva.

Following this line of thought, Arjuna presents his final doubt in regards to Our Akṣarābhyāsa Practice Book will both introduce and familiarize you with the letters of the Devanāgarī script. You will learn to identify, read and write them. This is the first of a series of practice books designed to help you with all you need to know about this popular script of the ancient language, from identifying letters to forming words and sentences. Follow these practice books and you will surely master the Devanāgarī script.

The Practice Book introduces the Devanāgarī symbols, written in Sanskrit words, along with illustrations. This provides a foundation for the following Practice Books in the series (currently in the production process) which focus on writing and reading words and sentences.

Our Akṣarābhyāsa Practice Book also considers the needs of second language learners by informing learners how the letters are pronounced. This is achieved by providing the Transliteration (Roman script) of the Devanāgarī symbol, as well as a pronunciation guide at the back of the book. Learners will learn not only how the Devanāgarī symbol is written, but also how it is pronounced.

This resource is very useful for both learners who are new to Devanāgarī and also those who are familiar with this ancient script, but wish to practise and fine-tune their skills in writing Devanāgarī. Though it is designed on the lines of alphabetical workbooks for children, the Akṣarābhyāsa Practice Book is suitable for learners at all stages, of all ages.

Our Akṣarābhyāsa Practice Book is especially recommended for those who are using, or those who have completed learning Saṃskṛta-citra-kośaḥ and Saṃskṛta-vidyārambha Part one. It is the perfect tool for complementing speaking with writing Sanskrit.
